

BlackFinn: the Queen City's uptown saloon

page 38

Audited circulation: 45,000

Charlotte WEEKLY

ABOUT THE COMMUNITY, FOR THE COMMUNITY

Sabres sprint to state semifinals

page 26

Volume 7, Number 49 • Dec. 5-11, 2008

www.thecharlotteweekly.com

An independent, award-winning and locally owned newspaper

Education

More school news

Learning the law

Photo courtesy of Charlotte School of Law

Albemarle Road Middle School students participated in a mock trial at Charlotte School of Law on Nov. 20. (Front row, from left) Jaha Allen, Imani Plummer, Garrett Taylor, Isaiah Grimsley, Maheder Yohannes, (second row) Jordan Dubose, Leah Ferguson, Jayla Horton, Elizabeth Speilman, Kashanna Pride and Katea Chapman received guidance from (back row) CharlotteLaw student volunteer Chris Austin, Professor Scott Broyles and CharlotteLaw volunteer David Wilson during the mock trial. The student-led trial was part of the Citizen Schools Apprenticeship after-school program, which gives students firsthand knowledge of various careers. Each trial was led by Brook Beyer, assistant general counsel for NASCAR, and volunteer attorneys from McGuire Woods. Students from Charlotte School of Law have been volunteering with the Albemarle Road Citizen School apprentices, familiarizing them with court protocol, proceedings and practicing law.